“Arthur Wallis wrote the book God's Chosen Fast about seventy-five years ago. He did not realize his book would be the “signature book” on fasting for the next four generations of believers. Those who have sought to know God intimately, and to see God's miraculous power in answer to prayer, have read, studied and applied God's Chosen Fast. May it have another seventy-five years of Spirit-filled ministry.

—Elmer L. Towns, Cofounder and Vice President of Liberty University

Originally published in 1968, God's Chosen Fast presents what Scripture has to say about this essential practice within the Christian life. Wallis explores practical aspects of fasting and includes helpful tips, references to stories of Old and New Testament fasting, and a biblical index. God's Chosen Fast invites readers to employ fasting as a way to grow closer to God.

“Who knows how to raise godly children of real character in today's world? Dr. Harold Sala knows, and he'll show you how in The Parent Map. It's fun to read, it's wise, it's practical and it's Bible-based.

—David Clarke, PhD, Christian Psychologist and author of Kiss Me Like You Mean It and I Don't Want a Divorce

In the midst of the fast-paced, media-driven and counter-Christian culture of this world, raising godly children can be challenging and, in some cases, nearly impossible for Christian parents. The Parent Map focuses on the responsibility of parents to follow God's plan. Sala gives insight into how parents can be the family leaders God has called them to be. Instead of avoiding tough issues that come along with raising children, Sala presents a parent-centric model for parenting that encourages parents to equip their children to engage society in a biblically informed way.

Dr. Harold J. Sala, a well-known speaker and Bible teacher, is the author of over forty books, published in various languages, and hundreds of publications. He earned his PhD from Bob Jones University. His further graduate studies have been at the University of Southern California, California Baptist Seminary, Fuller Theological Seminary and the Conservative Baptist Seminary in Denver, Colorado. Residing in Mission Viejo, California, Harold and his wife, Darlene, have three adult children and eight well-loved grandchildren.

“The grace of God is not for those who are right, but only for those who are wrong. By its very nature it no longer has to find in me the procuring cause to draw forth the needed blessing. It would not be grace if that were necessary.

—Roy Hession
author of Broken People, Transforming Grace

Broken People, Transforming Grace initiates a spiritual revival for the Christian who has lost touch with the glorious truths of the gospel. Hession describes the gospel as “good news for bad people,” and teaches that through reconciliation, forgiveness and justification, along with God’s boundless grace, we can all be made whole.

Other Titles by the Author

Roy Hession, a successful evangelist in England, knew he had lost the power of the Spirit in his life—a terrible feeling as he led his evangelistic campaigns. In 1947 Hession met leaders of the East African Church, which was then experiencing a sweeping revival, and recognized his deep personal need. It was like starting the Christian life over as he came humbly to the cross. The principles which the Lord taught him were first published in 1950 as The Calvary Road and are now available in over seventy languages! Hession’s other titles include We Would See Jesus and Be Filled Now.

“As you read these pages, it is my prayer that you will find a new song to sing—a song to your God, to his people, and to your world. As you wait on the Lord, you will find Jehovah to be the God of eternity, who created the ends of the earth. This God isn't finished—with you or with your life.

—Jill Briscoe
author of Heartstrings

Heartstrings teaches us how to regain our joy in and after difficult circumstances. Jill Briscoe uses the example of the Israelites' experience while exiled in Babylon. Though in a strange land, they sat down under trees, took up their harps and sang. She uses this metaphor, with special focus on the symbolism of trees, throughout this book and devotes chapters to topics ranging from grief to growth. Briscoe encourages Christians to hang up their harps and allow God to play the strings of their hearts. When this happens, we can regain our joy.

Other Titles by the Author

Jill Briscoe is a highly sought international Bible teacher and author of more than forty books including devotionals, study guides, poetry and children's books. She has been in ministry for over fifty years and travels around the world, often alongside her husband, Stuart, ministering to underresourced churches. Jill's teaching can be heard daily by an international audience through the media ministry, Telling the Truth. She also serves as the executive editor of Just Between Us, a magazine of encouragement for ministry wives and women in leadership.

“During spiritual vertigo, we become spiritually disoriented. We know what the Bible teaches, but what we are seeing, hearing, or experiencing does not match what our faith tells us should be true . . . How can we have courageous faith when the everyday challenges and disappointments of life make us dizzy with doubt?

—Dwayne E. Mercer
author of Overcoming Spiritual Vertigo

Dwayne Mercer explains that “spiritual vertigo occurs when our faith cannot process what we see, hear or experience.” Many have lost courage in the present because they perceive that God has let them down when they have stepped out in faith in the past. Overcoming Spiritual Vertigo argues that in order to correctly interpret the trials and disappointments of the past, Christians need to see them from God’s perspective—through eyes of faith.

A native of Georgia, Dwayne Mercer has preached for more than thirty years and is a contributing author on two devotionals, The Pathway to Discipleship and Walk Through the Word. He has also written several articles for the Florida Baptist Witness. He and his wife, Pam, have three adult children and five adorable grandchildren. They have served at CrossLife Church in Oviedo, Florida since 1993, as it has grown from 650 to 2,400, and over 4,000 new believers have been baptized during that time.

It’s a psalm about God being our refuge and our shelter. It highlights the assurance of His protection and the safety that can be found in His Presence.*

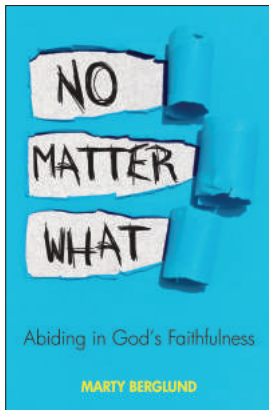

—Rhea Briscoe
author of Run for Cover

At times, we run from relationship to relationship in search of something real, something deeper. Run for Cover uses Psalm 91 to teach that what we seek, true intimacy, can only be found in the presence of God. First-time author and widely sought-after speaker Rhea Briscoe, takes readers through the psalm, highlighting each symbol and metaphor and includes compelling real-life narrative. Run for Cover asserts that the best place to grow closer to God and find shelter from the trials of this world is in the safest place—in the presence and protection of God.

Rhea is the radio voice of the “Fervent Life” radio broadcast and is an in-demand conference speaker who ministers with authenticity and contagious love for her Lord. Drawing from her experiences of God’s faithfulness in both painful times and good, she uses His Word to minister the love of Christ to others.
